Good afternoon,

I have reviewed the documents I will push forward and see if this is suffice. Is the CMM the TO? It seems like this will be a brand name justification which will limit to so degree the amount of businesses.

Mr. Fuller will follow up if anything else is required at this time.

Very respectfully,

Mr. Fuller,

The attached is the special tools listing from CMM 32-43-12. The entire Technical Order is too large of a file to send.

I have also attached the SOW tailored specifically to the 916th Hydraulics shop requirements.

Additionally, I am being told by MSgt Luong that Honeywell is the only company that makes the specific brake tools necessary for the KC-46.

Please let me know if there is anything else that you require.

MSgt Luong / MSgt Grimm,

Can someone provide the applicable and appropriate technical order (32-43-12) mentioned in the attached statement of work sent over from you all?

The SOW also mentions that the installation by the vendor is not required. Does this still stand? Can you please update the SOW and send it back with the necessary specifics tailored to the 916th specific requirement?

Additionally, are we only limited to procuring (Honeywell) brake rebuild tools for the KC-46 aircraft because it is the only brand compatible with what you all currently possess? Please answer this yes or no.

We are simply justifying why we are only limited to using the brand name Honeywell's tools for the break system.

TSgt Sosa or Mr. Fuller,

Are you able to provide a better description of the information that would be needed to provide the legal justification? It appears this information has not had to be provided when other bases were trying to purchase this equipment so some examples of what they should be providing would be helpful.

MSgt Luong,

I'm not aware of any "legal" concurrence I can give to help a MOB justify ordering the equipment other than pointing out that tech data directs the use of certain equipment. I apologize if that provides no help.

I tagged in or SE folks that may be able to provide some assistance. Mindy/Joey, do you know of anything help we could provide to a MOB for justification in ordering backshop equipment other than tech data driving the requirement?
