Section B: Description of the Supplies/Services Required

AQ6380-10-L1-FCC/Z 900-1650 - Highest Performance Optical Spectrum Analyzer

HARD CARRING CASE AQ6370 - A1114AF-G

Section C: Justification for Soliciting from a Single Source or Brand Name

No other optical spectrum analyzer on the market currently offers this exact combination of ultra-fine (5 pm) resolution, broad wavelength coverage (900 -1650 nm), and exceptionally high sensitivity (down to -85 dBm). This unique performance profile is crucial for advanced optical characterization tasks such as frequency comb analysis, high-speed telecom signal testing, and research into emerging photonics technologies. Alternative instruments either lack the resolution needed to distinguish narrowly spaced signals or fall short on sensitivity and stability, thus failing to meet our specialized requirements. Acquiring the Yokogawa AQ6380 ensures the most precise and reliable optical spectrum analysis platform available, maximizing both current research productivity and long-term value.

Section D: Efforts to Obtain Competition

The following capabilities, particularly its unique combination of ultra-fine resolution, expansive wavelength coverage, and high sensitivity set Yokogawa apart from other brands and justify a sole-source acquisition

A source sought was posted on the General Services Administration (GSA) platform from 11/19/2024-12/02/2024, seeking vendors for a specific type of equipment. However, no responses were received, indicating a lack of available options or interest from potential suppliers. The equipment in question is highly specialized, with unique features that make it a niche product in the market, potentially limiting the pool of interested or capable vendors.

Section E: Steps to Preclude Future Single Source or Brand Name Awards

Actively encourage competition by reaching out to multiple suppliers and posting solicitations widely, through government procurement platforms GSA and SAM.gov
