Section C: Justification for Soliciting from a Single Source or Brand Name

Calamityville is the only site in the area specifically designed for the large -scale Mass Casualty (MASCAL) experience. The site is set on over 50 acres, (locally) in Fairborn, Ohio, and uses unique props and realistic simulated settings to duplicate the full range of hazardous environments seen in both man-made and natural disasters. Calamityville offers set packages for the simulation training event that includes anatomical "gifts" - cadavers that are crucial to the MASCAL training. The simulated settings, 50 acre industrial space and anatomical gifts of Calamityville directly impacts the success of the MASCAL training designed by the Government.

Section D: Efforts to Obtain Competition

Based on the market research conducted (January - March 2025) and detailed below, Calamityville has been identified as a uniquely qualified to fulfill this requirement, due to the nature and complexity of the training sit needed. No alternate training sites or substitutes can meet the Government's requirements without incurring significant financial costs for travel.

To gain competition research was completed via the internet to find other venues that can meet the requirement specifically stating 50-acre site for mass casualty training.

1. FEMA provides world-class training and education for the nation's first responders and emergency managers and other members of the community through a robust enterprise of institutions and partnerships managed by the National Preparedness Directorate's National Training and Education Division (NTED) and the U.S. Fire Administration (USFA)

Single Source Justification (Simplified Acquisition)

National Fire Academy. The center for Domestic preparedness (CPD) offers 50 training courses at its resident campus in Anniston, Alabama and through mobile deliveries focusing on mass casualty response. While this option does focus on the topic, the simulation site is not as robust, and the Government would incur unnecessary travel costs.

2. Indian River State College, Fort Pierce, Florida does offer the space, 50-acre, eight building comprehensive training complex, however cadavers are no mentioned as part of the package and the Government would incur travel cost that is not needed.

3. Disaster City, Located in College Station, Texas, is a 52-acre training facility that can deliver the 'full array of skills and techniques needed by today's emergency response professionals.' While the vendor is capable of the space it is unknown if cadavers can be provided. Additionally, incurring travel costs is unwarranted when there is a local facility that can meet the Government's need.

Section E: Steps to Preclude Future Single Source or Brand Name Awards

The Government will continue to monitor the market for potential contractors who may meet the minimum requirements for similar future needs.

Section F: Contracting Officer's Determination
