BACKGROUND

The FBI's LD processes a significant number of samples sent to them from a multitude of departments and agencies. The samples may be stored in different types of containers for example glass, metal, paper and plastic. The LD is requesting samples of customized labels that will adhere to different types of containers, will not peel off and will not transfer ink. The labels need to be able to handle extreme temperature swings and be tear resistant. The containers these labels are attached to are placed into multiple storage areas, freezers, fridges, and high temperature instruments. The FBI uses three types of Zebra printers, TLP 3842, GX430T and ZD621 and DS2208 scanner to print labels. The labels need to be compatible to these printers and scanner and shall meet the following specifications.
